1.) The 99 Percent Declaration reformatted by Stone Riley

Call for a national assembly on July 4, 2012. This version is more printer friendly and compact than the official Occupy Wall Street web page version and offers an overview on the first page.

10.) "Occupy Worcester attempt to occupy Worcester Common"

Excellent video of the movement's consensus democratic in action. Shows action on the Common at Worcester, Massachusetts during the standoff between Occupy Worcester and city police. Participants move into the Common and erect several tents but large numbers of Police swoop in immediately, surround the site, and warn protesters to leave or be arrested. There is some brief communication between police and protesters that is not caught on camera. Then the protesters leap into their consensus democratic process, choosing their next course of action. Filmed 10/17/2011 about 1:00am. The democratic process starts at 5 minutes in.

14.) "New Hampshire protestors to regroup after Manchester arrests"

Article by Lynne Tuohy at Boston.com posted on 10/20/2011.

Generally sympathetic news article about a rally of O.New Hampshire in Manchester on 10/19/2011.

"Occupy New Hampshire protestors are planning to regroup - and possibly relocate - after a smattering of arrests in Manchester for criminal trespass."

15.) "Veterans Park protestors removed by city police"

Article by Tim Buckland in New Hampshire Union Leader published 10/20/2011 3:00am.

Very sympathetic news article with a good photo about the O.NH rally on 10/19/2011. Note that the Union Leader has often been very right wing politically.

16.) "Occupy New Hampshire is hard to leave"

Long video of an O.NH march in downtown Manchester. Filmed by RidleyReport, posted 10/16/2011.

Excellent pictures and chat. RidleyReport's voiceover commentary has a negative attitude at first but he asks serious questions of participants, gets serious answers and is pretty much won over. His final statement at the end: "Some libertyfolk criticize other libertyfolk for 'supporting' the occupations. For my part, I am not a supporter per se. I'm an active opponent of those who would aggress against the Occupiers. And I had so much fun at this event it was hard to leave."
